About

UPLIFT Checker is a beneficiary lookup for citizens of City of San Jose del Monte, Bulacan who want to confirm whether they are included in the UPLIFT list. It uses a short form with required name, birth date, and barangay fields, then checks beneficiary data tied to DSWD Field Office III.

What is UPLIFT Checker

UPLIFT Checker is a beneficiary lookup for the Unified Package for Livelihoods, Industry, Food, and Transport (UPLIFT) program. It is built for residents of City of San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, and the site says it is only intended for citizens of that city. The app helps users verify whether they appear in the beneficiary records associated with the City Social Welfare and Development Office and DSWD Field Office III.

The UPLIFT Checker is focused on a single task: a fast check against a local beneficiary list. Rather than publishing a long directory or a general public portal, the tool asks for basic identity details and returns whether the person is included. That narrow scope makes the beneficiary lookup simple to understand, especially for people who just need to confirm status without navigating a larger government system.

Key features

The beneficiary lookup keeps the workflow short and uses only a few fields:

- Required fields are marked with an asterisk, so users know what must be filled in before checking.
- It asks for Last Name, First Name, Birth Date, and Barangay.
- Middle Name and Extension Name are optional, which keeps the form lighter for common use cases.
- The barangay selector appears to be a dropdown list.
- A notice explains that if a barangay is not listed, there is no granted beneficiary for that barangay.
- The data source shown on the site is DSWD Field Office III.

Because this is a beneficiary lookup, the main value is speed and clarity. The app is not trying to manage applications, payments, or document uploads; it is simply a status check. That makes the UPLIFT Checker practical for a quick answer when a resident wants to know if they are in the list.

How to use it

Using the beneficiary lookup is straightforward and should only take a short time:

- Open the UPLIFT Checker in your browser.
- Enter your Last Name and First Name.
- Add your Birth Date.

Submit the form to search for your beneficiary status.

A few details matter when using this beneficiary lookup. The barangay field is not just a convenience filter; it appears to control whether the search can match against the available list. If your barangay does not appear in the menu, the site indicates that no granted beneficiary is listed for that area. Since the app is designed for CSJDM residents, it is not useful for checking people outside City of San Jose del Monte, Bulacan.

Who it is for

UPLIFT Checker is for people who need a quick beneficiary lookup tied to the UPLIFT program in City of San Jose del Monte, Bulacan. That includes:

- CSJDM citizens who want to confirm whether they are included in the beneficiary data
- Family members helping another resident check status using the correct personal details
- Staff or community helpers who need a simple, local verification tool for residents

The app is especially useful when the goal is to answer a yes-or-no eligibility question quickly. It is less suitable for users who need a broader social service portal, because this beneficiary lookup is limited to checking inclusion in the UPLIFT beneficiary list.

What to know before you use it

This beneficiary lookup has important limits, and users should know them before relying on it. First, the site states that it is only intended for citizens of City of San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, so it should not be used as a general nationwide checker. Second, the beneficiary data is said to come from DSWD Field Office III, which means the result depends on the records available in that source.

A lookup like this can only reflect the list it has access to. If your name is missing, the app does not explain the reason, and it does not appear to offer an appeal workflow, application form, or document correction process. It also does not show details such as benefit amounts, release schedules, or program rules. For those topics, users should contact the City Social Welfare and Development Office or consult the relevant official

The barangay warning is another practical limitation. If your barangay is absent from the dropdown list, the site says there is no granted beneficiary for that barangay, so there is no point in forcing a search with an unsupported location. Because the beneficiary lookup relies on personal data entry, users should also be careful to enter names and birth dates exactly as they appear in official records.

In short, UPLIFT Checker is a focused beneficiary lookup for CSJDM residents, not a complete government service system. Use it for a fast status check, and use the responsible office for confirmation when the result matters for official action.
